Message from the Chairman

Members and Friends,

As spring arrives, there is no denying that this has been the winter of our discontent. All over Kentucky and all over the country there is a very deep and valid sense that this commonwealth and this country are regressing in ways that seemed quite unlikely just a few short years ago. "Conservative" positions on healthcare, tax reform, public education, overreaching executive orders, Supreme Court nominations, the Flint Water Crisis and many other issues, have inspired many to march, call their legislators and show up at town hall meetings. This unprecedented level of civic engagement is one of the few positives that has arisen out of the conservative backlash against President Obama and the emergence of Donald Trump. READ MORE

Inside The Republican Plan to Dismantle Healthcare As We Know It

After years of campaigning against the Affordable Care Act, known either affectionately or condescendingly to most as ObamaCare, the Republicans are finally prepared to deliver on their promise to “repeal and replace” President Obama’s hallmark policy agenda item. This week, Republicans are expected to finally reveal details about their new healthcare bill. READ MORE

The Resistance Grows . . .

In our fast-paced culture, longstanding movements are hard to achieve. Our collective attention is constantly being pulled in various directions. One of the dangers of this Trump presidency continues to be the threat of normalization of the ignorance, hatred, violence, racism, sexism, xenophobia and degradation of the body politics generated by this administration. One of the ways that this vitriolic era becomes normalized is through our own fading resistance, as our collective screams wane into muted eye rolls and deep sighs, with little actual effort

HB 151: History Repeats Itself

State legislators who sought to maintain segregated schools during Louisville’s busing crisis in the 1970s may finally get their wish. Just forty-two years too late.
